The session will amplify best practices related to Beijing +30, focusing on women's land rights, women in the mining sector, the intersection of gender-based violence (GBV) and land rights, and access to economic resources for poverty eradication and gender equality. It will feature a panel of experts, including practitioners in women's land rights, land tenure, gender equality, and women in mining. Speakers will share successful programs that secure tenure rights for women, promote economic justice, and empower women economically. The session aims to influence regional discussions, including "The Africa We Want," and global conversations on women's land rights, gender equality, and poverty eradication in alignment with Beijing +30 goals.
